

2.3 Teaching-Learning Process (40)

2.3.1 Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences using ICT tools (40)

To enhance the learning experience of the students the following student centric methods are adopted in our institution.

- Information and Communication Technology (ICT) been used by the faculty members to make students understand the concepts easily.
- Audio-Visual (AV) aids are used by the faculty members to explain the subjects simply. This helps to improve the conceptual understanding of the students.
- Students are encouraged to perform role-plays of various characters. The role plays help the students to improve their communication skills, shed the stage fear, and advance creativity.
- Case studies are introduced to the students. The students approach the cases with the help of SWOC analysis (Strength, Weakness, Opportunity, and Challenge) and provide a solution to the case.
- Assignments are given to the students covering various aspects of the subject. The assignments serve as a knowledge-bank for the students.
- Students are encouraged to participate in group discussions. The students discuss a topic with a common objective of finding a solution for a problem.
- Mini-projects and major projects are introduced to the students for applying their theoretical knowledge practically.
- Internships and industrial visits are arranged to the students to equip the students with real-time learning experience.
- Individual computers were assigned to each student in the computer lab to advance their computer literacy and update their computer knowledge to meet their employment needs.
- Demonstrations of experiments are presented to the students to make them learn the concepts by 'doing' the practical.
- Exhibitions, guest lectures, seminars, symposiums, training programs, and workshops are organized to the students to acquire hands-on knowledge.
- Various competitions are organized for students to explore their critical thinking and creativity. These competitions kindle the student's ability to plan, budget, organize, and innovatively execute their ideas.
